RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENT FOR FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING

1.1 Risk of trading Futures and Options

The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, you may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as “stop-loss” or “stop-limit” orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market Conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before you trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of your own financial position and investment objectives. If you trade options you should inform yourself of exercise and expiration procedures and your rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

1.2 Futures

i. Effect of “Leverage” or “Gearing”

Transactions in futures carry in a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are “leveraged” or “geared”. A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit: this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be liable for any resulting deficit.

ii. Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. “stop-loss” orders, or “stop-limit” orders), which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts, may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as “spread” and “straddle” positions may be as risky as taking simple “long” or “short” positions.

1.3 Options

i. Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs.

The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a future, the purchaser will acquire a futures position with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium plus transaction costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote.

Selling (“writing” or “granting”) an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the seller will acquire a position in a futures contract with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the option is “covered” by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or a futures contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited.

Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchase is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

1.4 Additional Risks Common to Futures and Options

i. Terms and conditions of contracts

You should ask the firm with which you deal about the terms and conditions of the specific futures or options which you are trading and associated obligations (e.g. the circumstances under which you may become obligated to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a futures contract and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

ii. Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or “circuit breakers”) may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If you have sold options, this may increase the risk of loss.

Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the future, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge “fair value”.

iii. Deposited cash and property

You should familiarize yourself with the protections given to money or other property you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

iv. Commission and other charges

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

v. Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before you trade you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. You should ask the firm with which you deal for details about the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

vi. Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

vii. Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or member firms. Such limits may vary: you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.

viii. Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or is not executed at all.

You acknowledge that internet trading may involve hacking risks, cybersecurity risks, unauthorized access, unauthorized trading execution and/or security breach to your internet trading accounts. You understand, acknowledge and agree that such risks shall be absolutely borne by you. Likewise, you undertake to notify us of such risks and incidents as soon as practicable after becoming aware of such risks and incidents.

ix. Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you deal may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarize yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

1.5 Risk of Margin Trading

The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. You may sustain losses in excess of your cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with the licensed or registered person. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as “stop-loss” or “stop-limit” orders. You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposit or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover, you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and interest charged on your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

1.6 Risk of Holding Assets Outside Hong Kong

Client assets received or held by the licensed or registered person outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap. 571 of The Laws of Hong Kong) and the rules made thereunder. Consequently, such client assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on client assets received or held in Hong Kong.

1.7 Risk of Providing an Authority to Hold Mail or To Direct Mail to Third Parties

If you provide us with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for you to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of your account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.

Dear Valued Customer,

Re: Prevention of Money Laundering & Terrorist Financing Guidance Note (“AMLGN”) Issued by the Securities & Futures Commission (“SFC”)

We thank you for your support in our dealing services. As you may be aware, the SFC has reminded all licensed corporations of the importance of prevention of money laundering in the financial industry and have established certain codes and guidelines (“Guidelines”) which we, as a licensed corporation in the financial industry, must comply with. Pursuant to paragraph 9.5 of the AMLGN, the licensed corporations are reminded to take into account, among other things, frequent third party deposits or payments, along with other relevant information, to assess whether there are any suspicious transactions to be reported to the Joint Financial Intelligence Unit (“JFIU”) or other appropriate authorities.

Please kindly note that third party deposits and/or payments are discouraged. However, pursuant to SFC guidelines, should you request a third party payment or should you deposit third party funds into your account, you must provide the identity of the third party, their relationship with you and the specific reason for the third party deposit or payment, as the case may be. Please be advised that pursuant to the Guidelines, we are required to report, without prior notification to you, all suspicious transactions, which include but are not limited to suspicious third party deposits or payments, to the JFIU or other appropriate authorities.

Accordingly, once you have deposited funds or cheque(s) into our designated bank account and if the source of funds comes from a third party acting on your behalf, please state your relationship with the third party and the reason for such deposit on your bank-in slip before you fax it to Kingsway. Similarly, if you request a payment to a third party, please state in the withdrawal form your relationship with the third party and the reason for such payment.

We would very much appreciate for your co-operation on the above arrangement and should you have any queries, please feel free to contact your Account Executive or our Customer Service Hotline at (852) 2283-7373.

Large Open Position Reporting

Dear Clients,

We are writing to remind you of the requirements and the responsibilities of reporting Large Open Position and the Reporting Level as prescribed by (i) the Securities and Futures Ordinance; (ii) the Securities and Futures (Contracts Limits and Reportable Positions) Rules (the “Rules”); and (iii) the Guidance Note on Position Limits and Large Open Position Reporting Requirements (as amended) issued by the Securities and Futures Commission.

1. Large Open Position Reporting Levels

Pursuant to the Rules, if you hold open positions in a particular “futures contract month” or “options series” in excess of the specified threshold, you will need to report your Large Open Position to the Hong Kong Futures Exchange Limited (“HKFE”) or the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (“SEHK”) (as the case may be). Large Open Position Reporting Levels may vary by products. For a complete list of Large Open Position Reporting Levels, please refer to the Large Open Positions Reporting Level and Position Limits Table on HKEX website at <http://www.hkex.com.hk>.

2. Timing of Reporting Large Open Position

You need to file your Large Open Position report with the HKFE/SEHK (as the case may be) via the existing secure web-based Electronic Communication Platform of HKEX (“ECP”) no later than 12:00 noon of the next business day after the positions are opened or accumulated, and continue to file a Large Open Position report for as long as you hold positions in excess of the Reporting Level. For the avoidance of doubt, once you have held or controlled a reportable position, you will be required to file the notice of the reportable position to the HKFE/SEHK (as the case may be) on each reporting day even though your position remains unchanged.

3. Responsibilities of Reporting

If you hold positions in excess of a Large Open Position, you can choose to submit the Large Open Position report via the ECP or through us as your broker. However, where positions are held by you with more than one broker, you should assume sole responsibility to notify HKEX of your reportable position.

If you need any queries, please feel free to contact our Operations Department at (852) 2283-7373 or your Account Manager.

Yours faithfully,
